XFX Radeon RX 550 | Don't Get Bought By XFX! This video covers something that never occurred to me, that when it comes to choosing your graphics card IEMore or HDMI hardware can be more important than the graphics card. I thought that using HDMI and DVI would give me more flutter free signal. Will I lose anything in video quality? I don't think so, nor did it look like it in the video. Anyways, if you are looking to upgrade from a pre-overclocked GTX 750 or any other GPU on the market anything more than the RX 550 is only going to give you extra flutter in games when gaming. Also, there's a decent chance that you have a HDMI port on your monitor. If that's the case, and you are not using the monitor in question, you'll be losing out on extra flutter free with DVI cable. More video explanations to this are in the video, take a look if you like! Follow me:
